

SEPTEMBER 2012 to XXXXXXXXXX

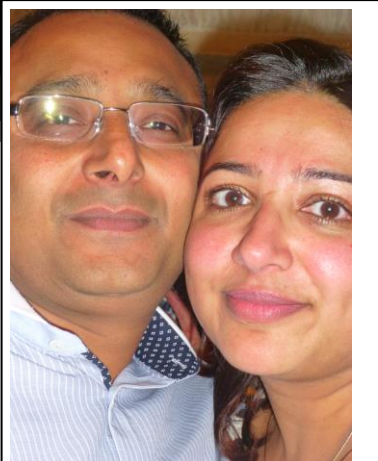

(Volume 43)

SEPTEMBER 2012 (VOLUME 43)

Prya, the lovely daughter of our neighbours, Milan & Seema, was 18, and we were invited to the great celebration in the marquee next door...

One of our walks, at the lower end of Forty Hall, has several fishing lakes on the site of the old Elsynge Palace (around 1420) and later was a hunting park for royalty. Sometimes when we walk there, there is no-one else around and the whole area is very atmospheric and changes in every season.

This panorama gives a good overall aspect (NB they are currently laying new paths here and in doing so have totally ruined the natural aspect of the whole area)

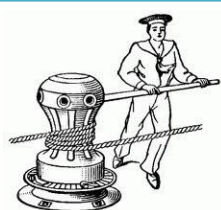

The wonderful colour of the leaves and berries this year reflect the strange weather we have been having and the gourds grown and displayed in Middleton House were really attractive

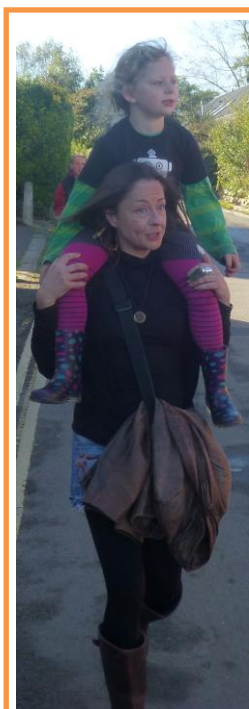

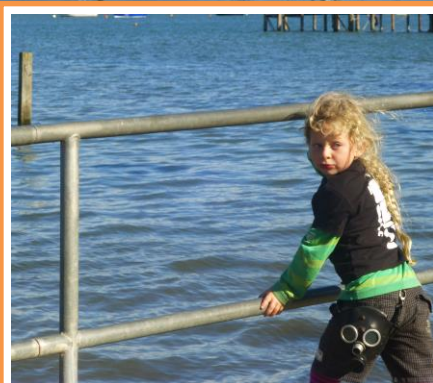

October 2012 at Pin Pill. We had fun with Billie and her boys and DP, Peachy and Beau

NOOIT VOLTMAAKT
(Nearly perfect)

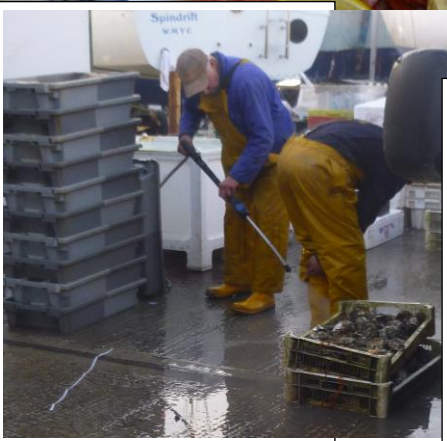

Dp's wonderful home

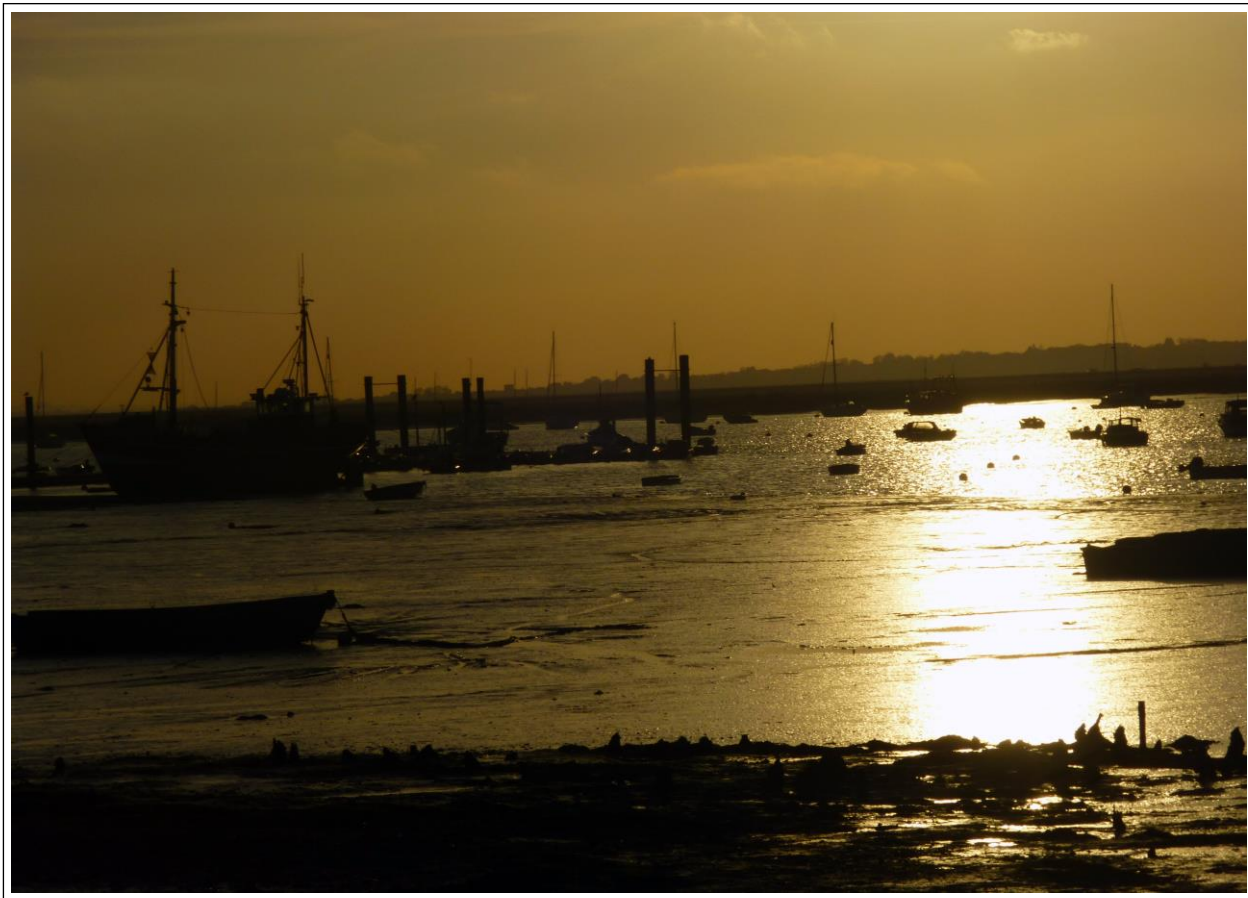

The Company Shed – A unique fish restaurant on Mersea Island .. Marion took Lynn, Sue and myself there. No advance booking and a restricted ‘catch of the day’ - absolutely fresh and great fun in this wonderful location. Well worth the drive and all very reasonably priced

Coffee in front of the open fire in the local pub after the much-needed post lunch walk

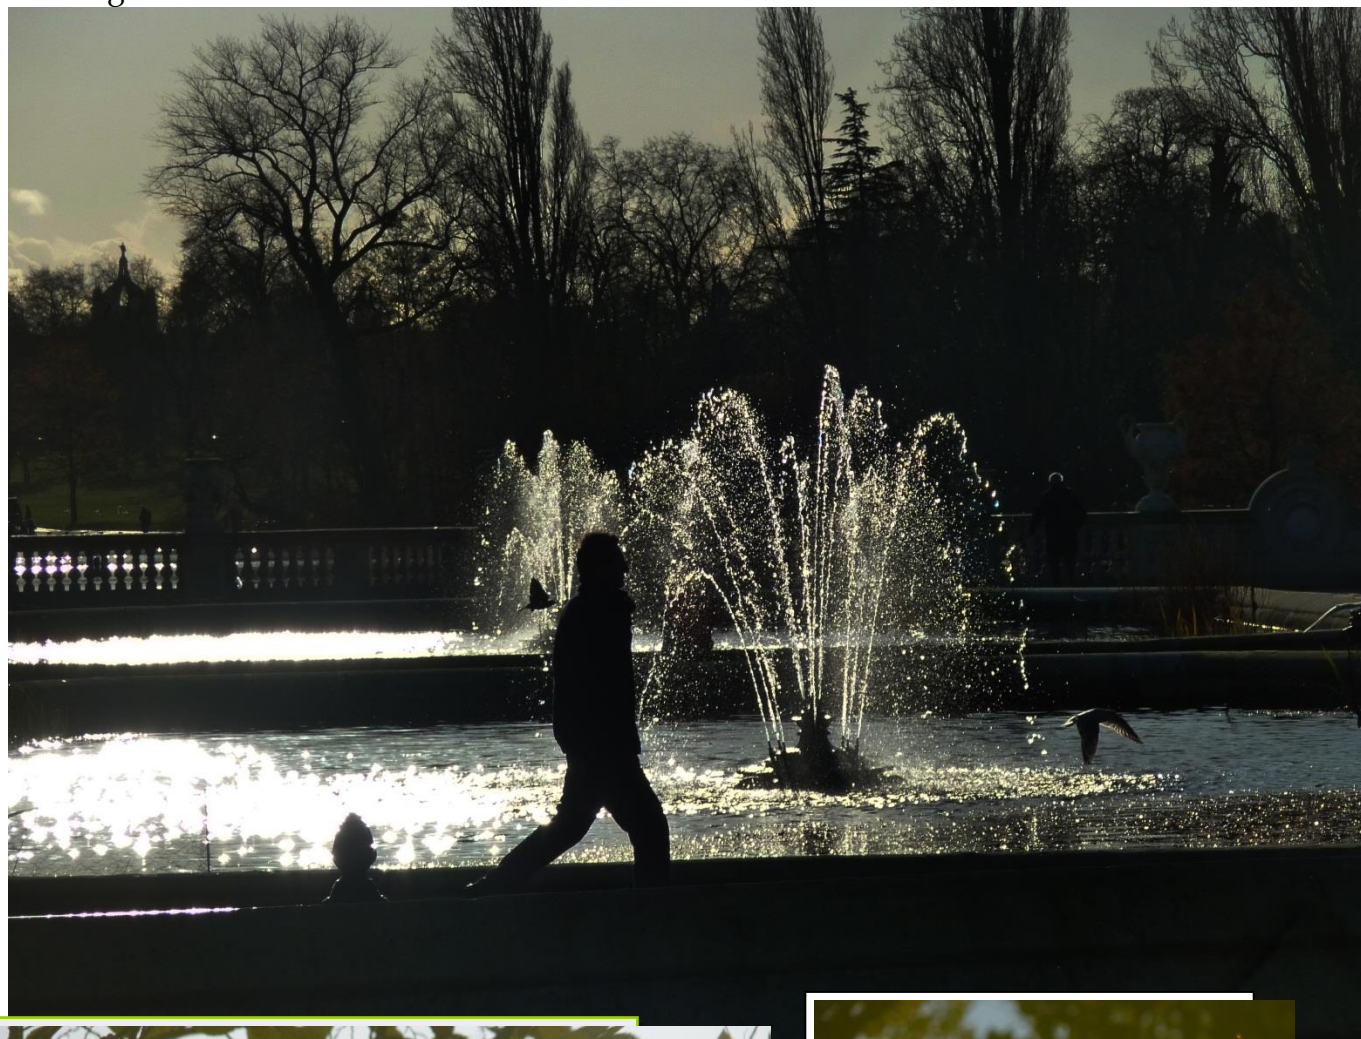

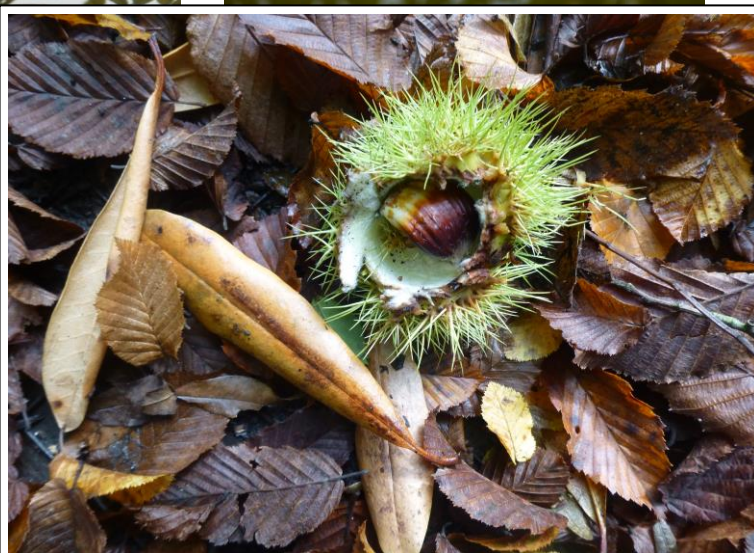

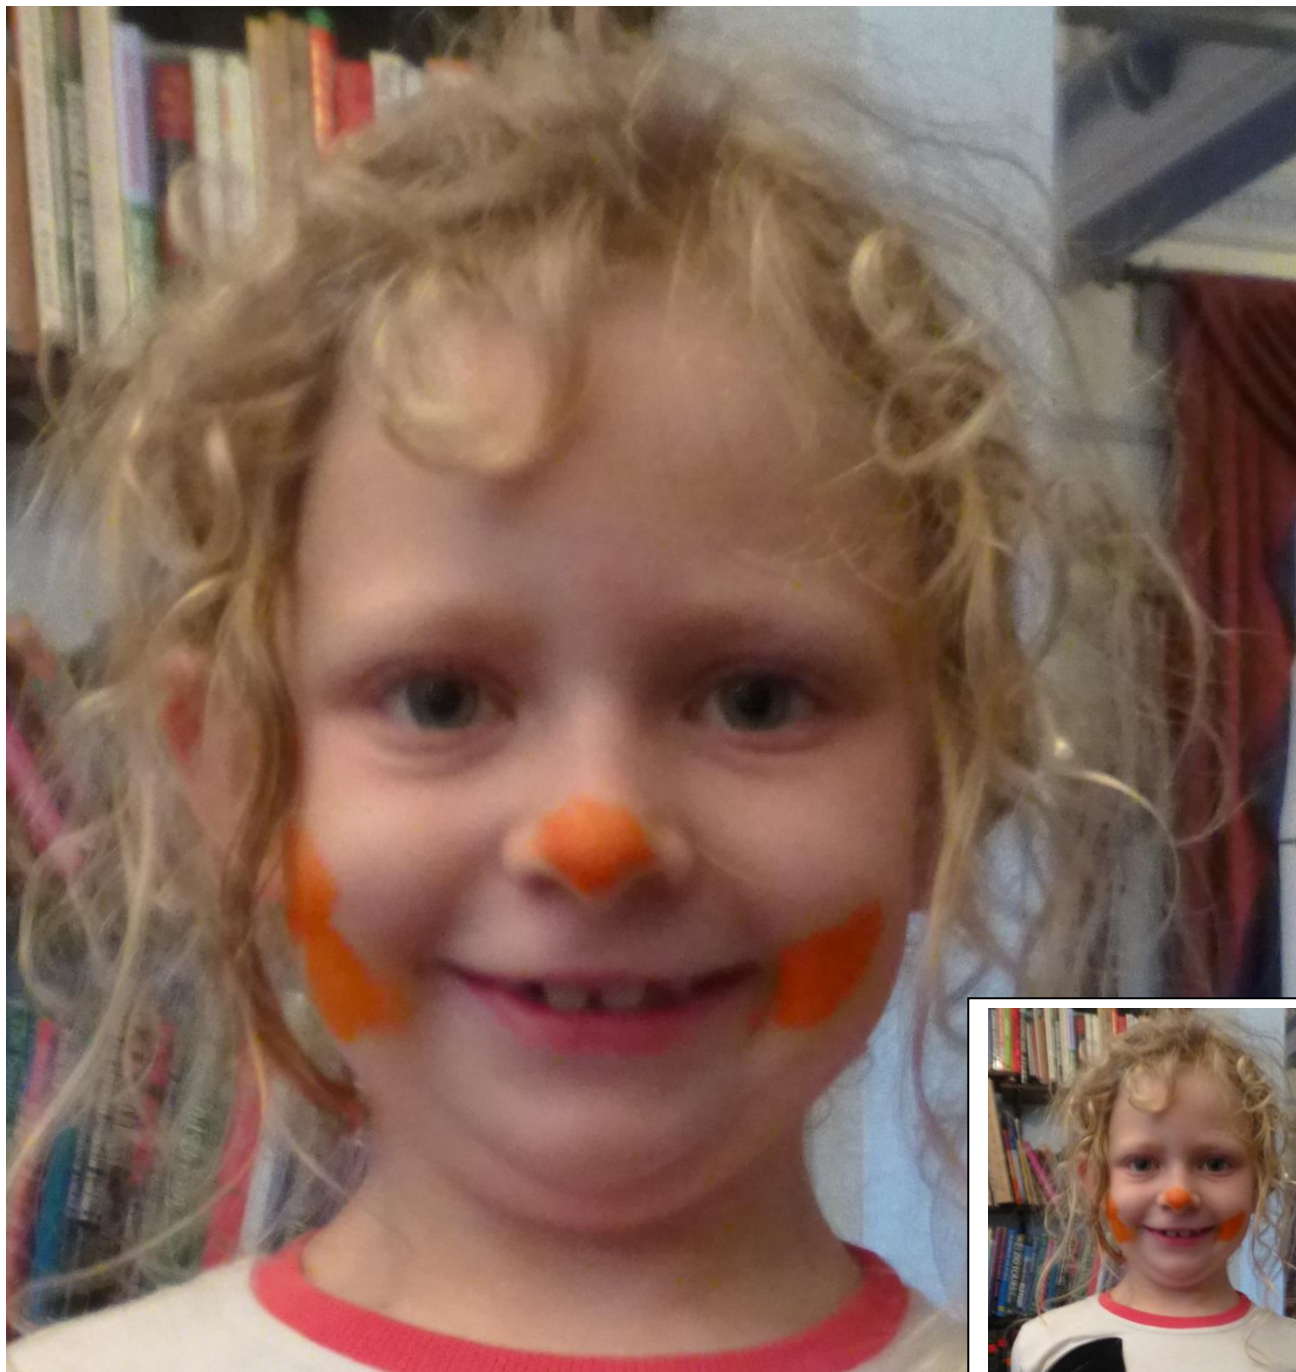

Kensington Palace Gardens...

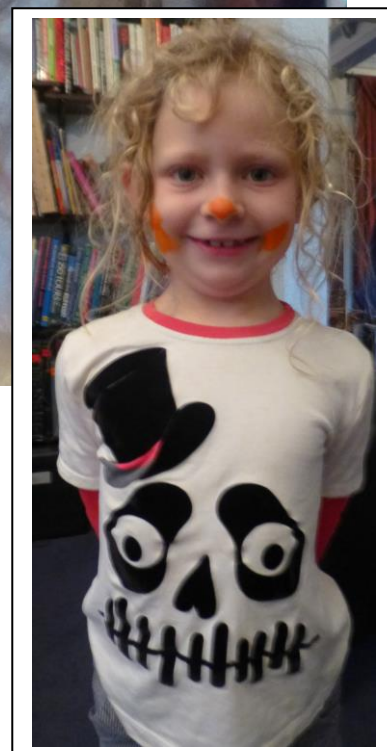

October 2012 - The Fishing Ponds at Forty Hall with the fallen leaves give some wonderful colours and reflections

Scamp

Around the City walk with 'the lads'
Gog & Maygog' looming large above us in the Guildhall

Fun and games...

City reflections

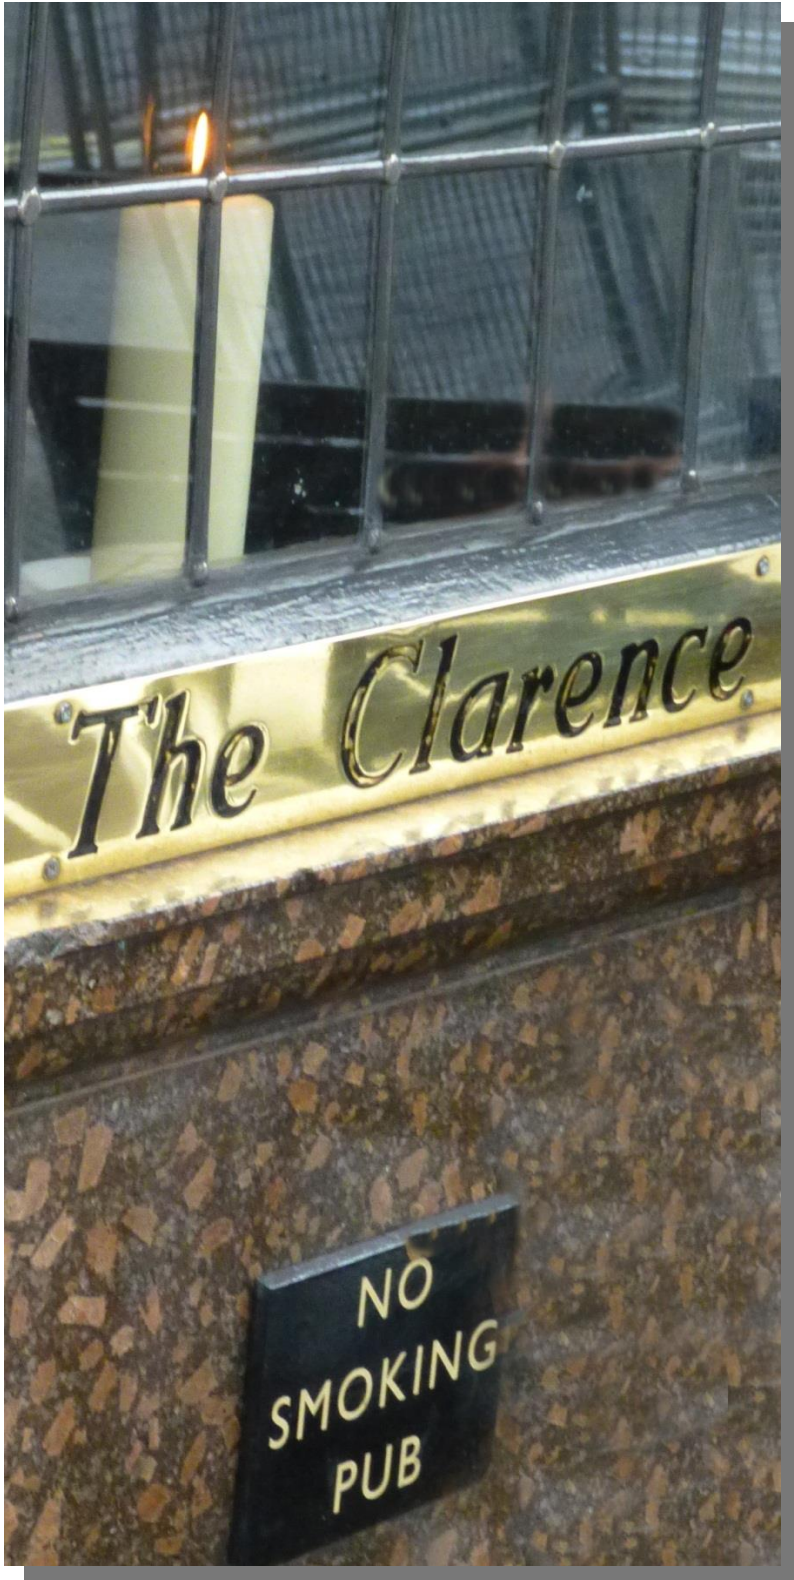

Audley End House and grounds

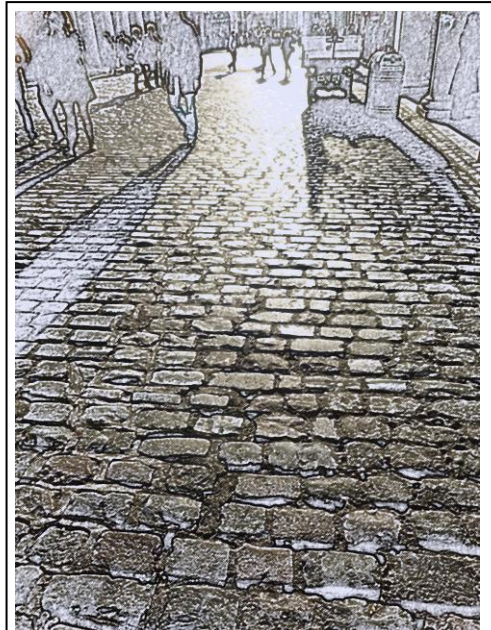

A Victorian Christmas enacted in the house and the ha-ha view from the grounds

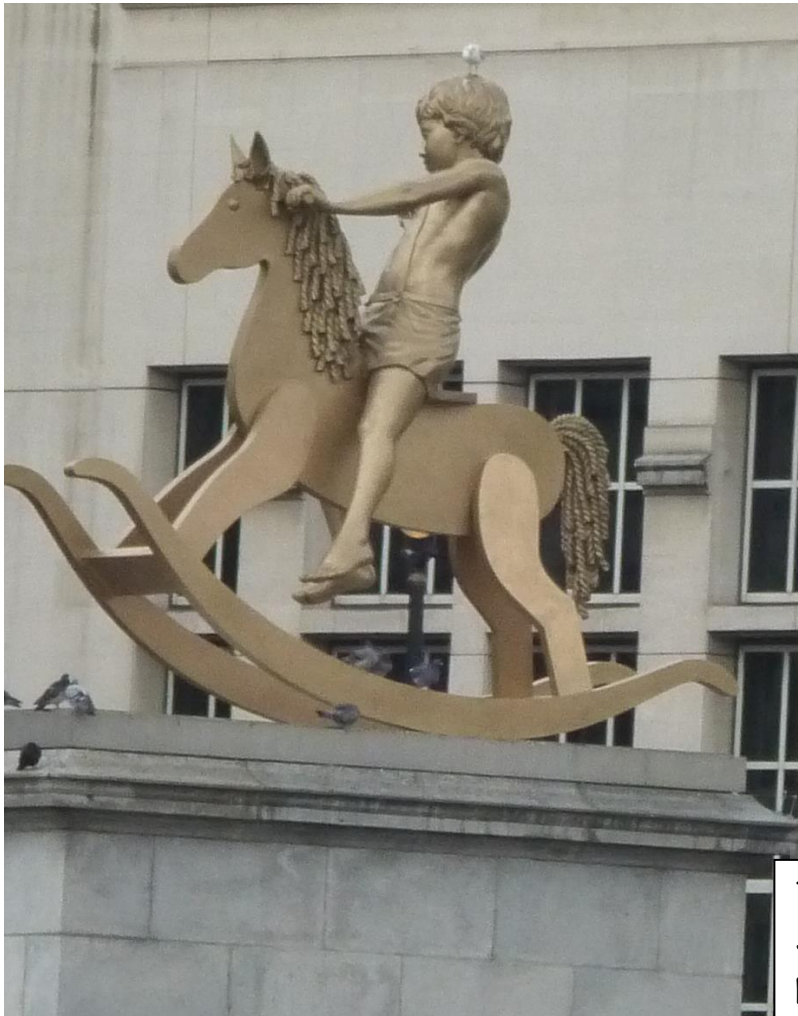

Covent Garden

The Fabric Tree on
The Southbank.

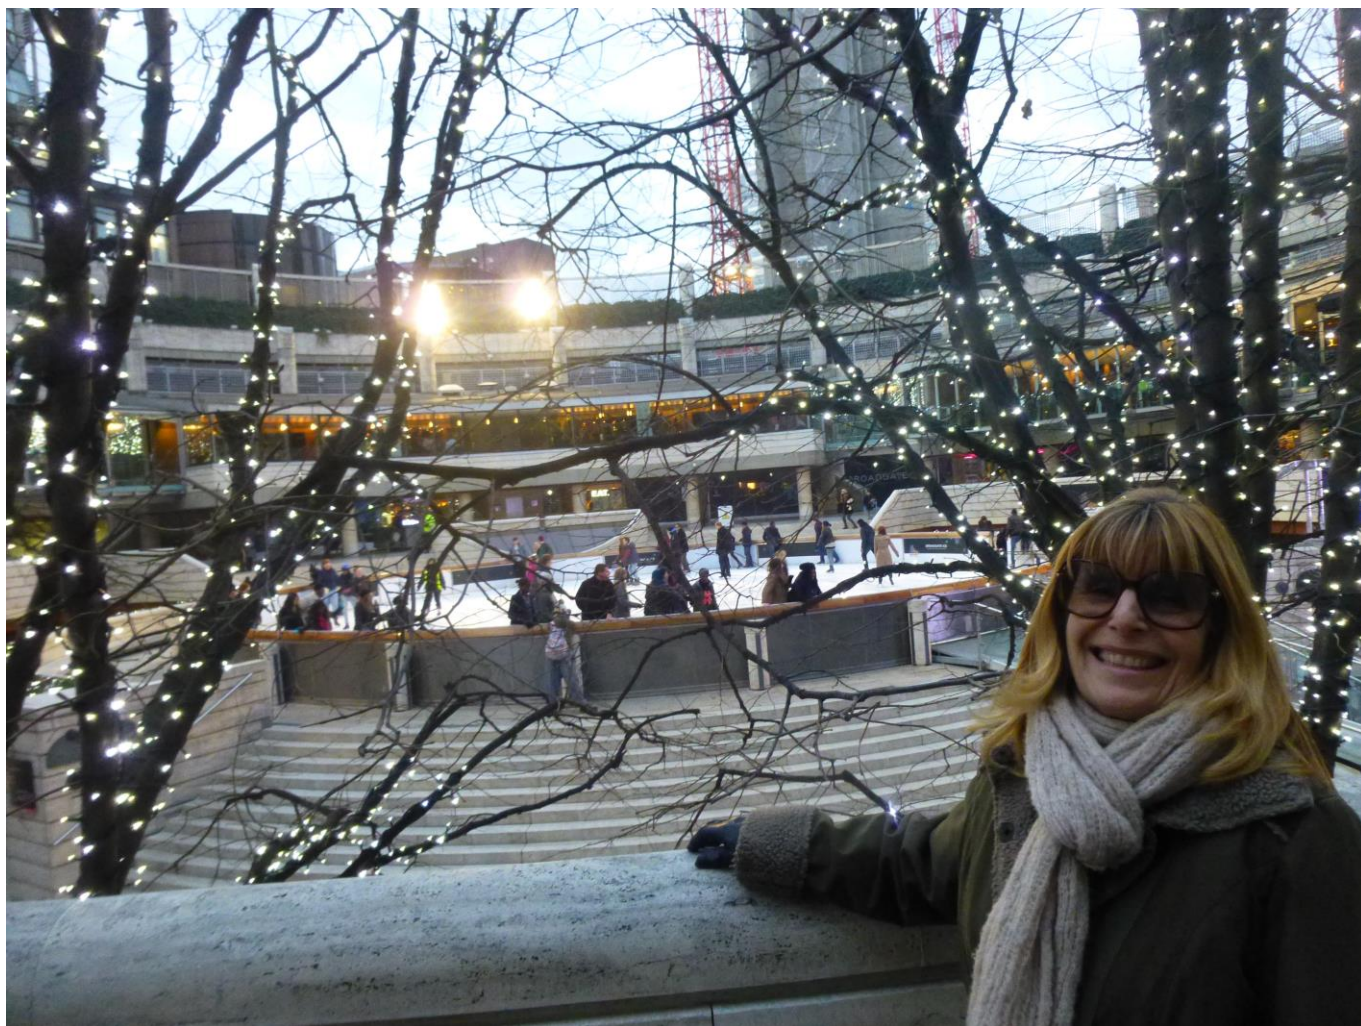

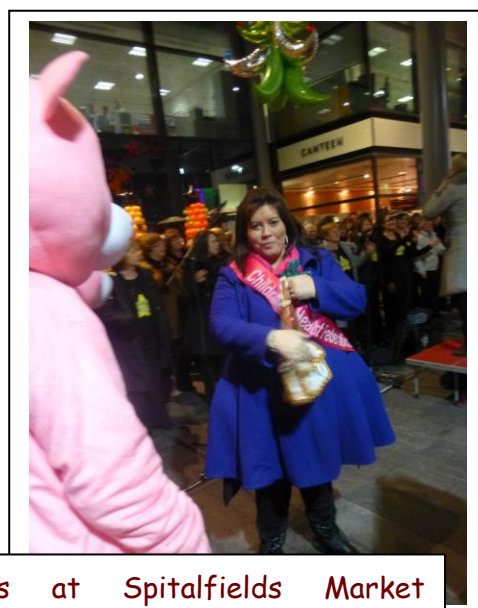

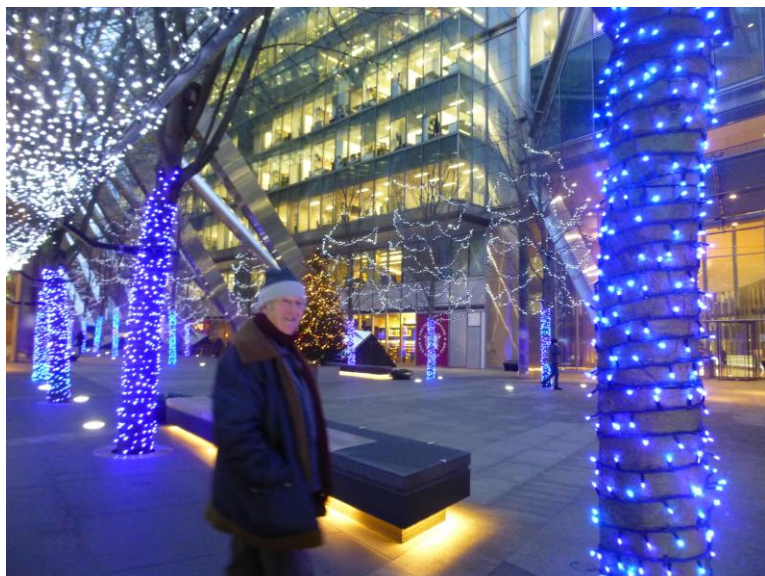

Trafalgar
Square changing plinth display

Frosty early morning view on Dunstable Downs

Christmas Skating rink at Broadgate and around the City

Carols at Spitalfields Market (where we were invited by The Children's Cancer Charity)

Christmas 2012..Grand opening of the 'pressies'

No front hall should be without emergency evacuation procedures being in place...the expressions say it all...